

Life with unlimited funds

When I first heard of this topic, almost everything came into my mind. Actually, I am very frugal with money in my daily life, and I am used to those ordinary days, wearing ordinary clothes and doing ordinary things. But if I really got a chance to spend as much money as I want, I would try something that I did not ever imagine before.

I have mentioned in my previous speeches that I love travelling very much. But for most of my trips, I just chose to travel in China and the trips only last for a few days. I have been abroad only once last summer, and I only stayed there for six days. So what I have always wanted is to travel abroad for a long time period. And if I had unlimited funds, I even wanted to travel to every corner of the world.

Personally, it is meaningful to go to another country and experience their native culture. It is like taking an adventure to the unknown area. Sometimes I should get used to different life paces and life styles, and I will have difficulty communicating with local people with their native language. But all these sufferings are worthwhile. I can make friends with local people, and tell jokes and share my experiences with my host family at night. Maybe I can also have the chance to take part in the celebrations on native festivals. It is a good way to understand their history and appreciate their culture. Life is quite different between abroad and here in China, and I think those experiences would become my most precious memories through my life.

Moreover, with my unlimited funds, I would like to taste different kinds of food while travelling around the world. Many friends of mine who have gone broad said they felt very unaccustomed to Western food, but I am sure that will not happen to me. I have watched many videos on YouTube which introduce different kind of delicious food around the world. I learned that western people like to eat raw vegetables and mushrooms, which is not generally adopted in Chinese dishes. I also learned that some countries have the tradition of having “afternoon tea”. People can communicate with their friends accompanied with tea and desserts, and they just spend a whole lazy afternoon together. It sounds very attractive to me.

I think it is great to leave my footprint around the earth, but it is just my dream. It is hard for me to make large amount of money and, of course, it is impossible to get unlimited funds. However, I will never give up my dream of travelling around the world. I think humans are great since they have created those different and colorful cultures, and it is the diversity of our world that makes me truly appreciate our beautiful life.
